What it does:

Provides full-service telecom network engineering, including designing, installing, and integrating systems and software.

Why it's growing:

CEO Fabomi Ojoula says his client base is expanding from major telecom carriers to health and government services, primarily due to diversified services. "We can build a house when our competitors can build a room," he says.

What's noteworthy:

Ojoula was raised in Nigeria, and then lived in Italy for years before he moving to California. He speaks Yoruba, the Nigerian language, as well as Italian and English.
